«Bristol, (England)» The writer's daughter has been sick in Bridgewater, and the writer had to return home without her. Mrs. Michell is coming to take care of the writer, W. W. Brown and the Crafts. Mrs. M. has mailed out all the Clerical Teachings, Resolutions, etc. that she had. Comments on the Resolutions, which will probably offend the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society, and may not please some of the Abolitionists. Tells of the reaction to his speech in praise of Garrison at a recent meeting. Refers to a publication called the Anti-Slavery Obstructor. Says that W. W. «Kingsdown, (England)» The writer has had two letters from Mr. (John) Scoble, one in reply to a note sent with an extract about (Josias) Henson. The North Star reported that Henson was in England, collecting for the Dawn Institution without authority from its trustees. Mr. Scoble claims to have examined Henson's case and is satisfied. Scoble's mind is made up that the American & Foreign A.S. Society "is right & is the most truly useful." The writer has sent the Resolution and Bazaar Appeal to the papers decided upon. "Who can read Mrs. Chapman's two books and not feel that they are true?" The writer hopes the addressee is better and was able to meet her Ame[illegible] friends at Hampstead.

To Miss Mary Carpenter

Vol.4
No.30

‹Leicester, Mass.› The writer has been hoping for an expression of disapproval of the Fugitive Slave Law by the English Unitarians. Says that Dr. Francis Parkman has opposed the passage of any resolution concerning Slavery by the American Unitarian Association. Regrets the course taken by Russell Carpenter. Mentions a lecture on Popery by Philip Carpenter which the Christian Inquirer refused to print. Thinks that Russell Carpenter is too attached to the Unitarian denomination. Explains why he abandoned the Unitarian clergy. Doubts if he can get Miss Carpenter's poems published in the U.S.

To «Mary A. Estlin?»

«(Dublin, Ireland?)» "It is difficult for any of us to stand straight in the Weston sense." Whereas the writer sees narrowness and bigotry in people, he does not see dishonesty. If the writer should force co-operation with the American Society on those who "abhor slavery very sincerely, though they stum-at Garrison," he would only drive them "into the hands of the Philistines." The writer pities "those who do not think & feel on those matters as we do ... angels pass them by and they do not see them." Refers to "this everlasting Wigham affair," and hopes the addressee will plead with Miss (Caroline) Weston "if she goes [illegible] Scotland to hide her thunder." To "Dear Madam" :Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman:

:29 Charlotte Terrace, Barnsbury Road, Islington, (London): The writer tells about George Thompson, who "passed through his first ordeal with his constituency successfully." There was, however, a strong opposition, which resulted in a hostile amendment to the resolution approving of Thompson's proceedings and pledging future support. Thompson made a short, extemporaneous speech, "but one of the most manly eloquent and effective I ever heard him deliver." The writer summarizes the speech, which included accounts of Thompson's visits to America in 1835 and 1850. "The audience nearly 3,000 in number were almost mad with [illegible]husiasm. Not a single hand ... was held up for the amendme[illegible]d the original motion was carried with only one disse[illegible]nt."

«29 Soho Sq., (London)» The writer dined yesterday at Mr. Conder's, editor of the Patriot. He has "a very poor opinion of «John» Scoble as regards truth" and has broken with him. Mr.Conder spoke of Garrison as an infidel and "a man of very bad moral character." He was, however, glad to hear "an opposite testimony of Garrison." Refers to the (London) Morning Advertiser and the articles of Mr. (James) Grant. Praises Dr. (Stephen) Lushington. Discusses opportunities for publishing in the newspapers. Conder thinks Joseph Sturge as bad as Scoble, and that Samuel Gurney, "no true A.S. man," is the great support of the British & Foreign A.S. Society.

Miss Tribe's and the writer's "pupils" in the Ladies' Anti-Slavery Committee "are advanced a good deal in their A.S. education" through the help of (James) Grant, and are being roused to "a high pitch of indignation against Scoble ..." No known Unitarian in England would have the hundredth part of his influence. "A little contre temps occurred while your family were in London... endangering Mr. Grant's personal interest in them." The writer threw himself into the breach, and everything was composed after a time. The writer traveled to London with George Thompson and Robert Charleton, whom he describes as a kind but weak man, "believing whatever Jos.Sturge or J.S[illegible]ble would tell him..."

«Bristol, (England)» "At present we must go on with the war of extermination against New Organization." It is difficult to make the English, especially Quakers, understand "that it is not the most enlarged kind of Antislavery to help & cooperate with 'all parties'." Refers to "such crafty antagonists" as Mr.Charleton and Joseph Sturge. Mrs.Chapman thinks that, although the conflict with the followers of Joseph Sturge may be long, "the Lord has delivered them into our hands." The writer takes pride in Miss Tribe as a pupil because, having derived her ideas of American anti-slavery from Captain Charles Stuart, she formerly imbibed "the holy horror of Mr.Garrison." Thinks of suggestin[illegible] Emma Weston that she spend the winter with the Estlins for [illegible] benefit of the cause. The «Dublin, (Ireland)» Asks the addressee to send a certain copy of a book by (John) Bigelow on to Miss Weston. Refers to an omission in a letter to Garrison, evidently printed in the Examiner. Comments on the Friends, who are a good sort of people, but have little independence of mind and "are often extremely shallow." The writer has just read Miss Weston's letter to the addressee. "It is deeply interesting." Thinks it "a sin and a shame that the early history of the cause should go to waste or be lost to posterity." Comments on "the prevalent ignorance & indifference of the English to the politics, circumstances, & private history of other people," which makes them easily imposed upon. To the Reverend Edwards Amasa Park of Andover.

[Philadelphia.] The Committee has conferred with Mr.Draper on the subject of the proposed publication and in the hope that some arrangement can be made with the Bibliotheca, the editor will confer at even greater length. Would like to have a religious organ which would be more personal than the Bibliotheca Sacra, which would give their church a means of communication. But they do not wish to interfere with the circulation of Dr.Park's paper, and hopes that some agreement can be made through Mr.Draper. A.L.S. 4p. 10 x 7 3/4 in.

«Staten Island?, N.Y.» The writer knew about the exclusion of his article on the Sims case and protested against it. He said that the reason that the country subscribers got copies of the Register containing the article was that their copies were mailed first and the issue was not changed until the country subscriptions were on their way. He also says that Rev. Samuel May Jr. thought that Dr. Francis Parkman had the article with drawn because the writer mentioned him in connection with another one. Does not agree with Rev. S. «Bristol, (England)» The writer, fearing that Garrison's answer to Mr. (James) Grant "might prove a cutting one," tried to prepare him for it, stressing Garrison's "unselfish devotion to the cause," and his readiness to die for it. This letter is concerned mainly with Mr.Grant. The writer describes him as a Scotsman, not highly educated. The circulation of the Morning Advertiser has increased since since he has had the sole management. He has always had strong anti-slavery feelings. While he will never sympathize much with Garrison, he "gives him credit for a devotion to the A.S.cause which he himself never felt for any c[illegible]." duced by the writer to Mrs. Chapman and her party in London, Mr.Grant was very attentive to them with various civilities, including the gift of opera tickets, which were used, but never acknowledged. Mr.Grant was painfully annoyed, and, as his daughter told the writer, "the unnoticed reception of his efforts did seem to them like intentional rudeness." «(Bristol, England)» The addressee's letter relieved the anxiety felt about her; people in Bristol "stopped us on the streets to ask about you." The writer has been uneasy about her cousin Walter (Bagehot?) Mr.Estlin at present has "a collection of disorders" due to cold and over-exertion. The writer has learned that Mrs. Follen is now staying with Lady Byron. Gives local news. Antislavery work keeps up briskly, although, through the absence of Miss Tribe, the writer has no helper. Has sent the "declaration of independence" and proposition for a new paper to about 50 societies and many friends. John Scoble has been attacking Ed. Mathews as a preliminary to his scheme in connection wit[illegible] Dawn Institute. E. Mathews has "all the documents requi[illegible] to expose him." The writer refers to the addressee's "erroneous ideas... of the position of the cause here." Develops the theme of the addressee's "judgment of Mr. Mathews" and her own difference of opinion, which is unaffected by her affection for and admiration of the addressee. The addressee's persistent condemnation of Mathews for the course he pursues is "not quite an evidence of impartiality." Refers to "that little sinner Mr. Kerry," who came to a committee meeting as a spy. The Ladies' Committee continues steady and harmonious. They are, however, reconvinced that the American A.S. Society "are very intolerant of every one who does not belong to them," and the writer thinks there is some truth in this conclusion. Tells of the reactions of different individuals. «Park St., (Bristol, England)» The writer discusses articles in the British Banner, Dr. (John) Campbell's views on the Abolitionists' attitude toward the church, an apparent dispute between a Mr. Chickering and Lewis Tappan, and an article on American Slavery which is concerned with the "Infidel School of American Abolitionists." The Dublin Anti-Slavery Society has passed a "vote of disapprobation" on the conduct of Kossuth. Quotes Mary (Estlin) as saying "she should think that Kossuth would never sleep in peace in his bed again." Refers to an admirable speech by W. Phillips, an excellent article by E. Quincy in the Nat. «Ben Rhydding» The writer met Mrs. Chapman and her party in London, attended the last sitting of the Peace Congress and visited the great Exhibition. Visiting in Bristol, she became acquainted with the Estlins. On returning to relatives, the writer found a cousin very ill and stayed with her. The writer's health being affected by the prolonged stay in a southern climate during the hot season, she resorted to this "fountain of health." The Estlins are working hard for the cause, Chapman's and Mrs. ~~Massman~~'s advocacy in London has doubtless "interested many & done much to open the eyes of others to the degree of confidence that ought to [illegible] placed in the Broad St. Committee." Describes Mazzini, with whom the writer spent an evening. "I cannot think he would have acted as Kossuth has regarding American Slavery." Remarks on H. C. «3 Holler Place, Fulham Road, Brompton, London» The writer comments on conditions in France. The bourgeoisie has a horror of what has happened, but only because its own liberty has been taken away. It does not yet understand equality and fraternity. It is only by the people and the army that the detestable power of the (2nd?) Bonaparte can be overturned, and these have not yet had their eyes opened. The writer is touched by the sympathy of the addressee's family, and thanks especially her charming daughter. The Bristol Anti-Slavery Society has profited from the writer's "twelvemonths' instructions." To Anne Warren Weston

Great Britain, which is to sent to Church Unions and meetings, together with a document prepared by Ed. Mathews, showing the connection of each American church with slavery. The writer finds the position of the American Anti-Slavery Society very intelligibly stated in the Bazaar Gazette. Assures the addressee of "our perfect coincidence in your view of Kossuth's course." W. Phillips's speech on Kossuth "has enraptured us all." Wishes that he could be sent "to elucidate the British folks." Extols E. Matthews in his courageous stand. He is "branded as one of the infidel Garrisonians." Asks if Garrison would object to alluding to E. Matthews as being hard at work for the cause in Engla[illegible] James Grant, who brought his daughter to have her eyes cu[illegible] by J. B. Estlin, told about an interview with Scoble.

To "Dear Sir" «Mr. Pearsall»

«Park St., (Bristol, England)» At the request of Mrs. Tribe, the writer sends material showing the untrustworthiness of the authorities quoted by Dr. «John» Campbell. Also furnishes Garrison's reply to the Morning Advertiser charge that he had intruded his theological opinions into the Anti-Slavery agitation. Mrs. Pearsall was disturbed by an article in the British Banner and feared that the (Bristol) Anti-Slavery Society would compromise its principles by co-operating with "the thoroughgoing American Abolitionists." Explains that those who raise the cry of "infidelity" are diverting attention from the fact that professing Christians are "leaving it to those whom they term 'infidels' to do [illegible] work." With regard to Mr. Seaton, the writer has not many fears on this account, as they agree on principles of action. Hopes the addressee will soon see the writer's "cher ami," who will accompany her to Bristol in about a fortnight. The writer spent a week at Tonbridge Castle, which did her much good. «3 Holler Place, Fulham Road, Brompton» This letter is concerned with the addresee's attitude toward Mme D'Agout. Apparently the writer had brought the addressee, who wished to know women interested in the anti-slavery cause, into some connection with Mme D'Agout, "a distinguished writer, a historian." It appears, however, that the addressee, because of moral scruples, did not wish to cooperate with Mme D'Agout. The writer thinks it wrong of the addressee to take a censorious view of this lady, who preferred to leave her husband rather than deceive him. This may be a crime in the eyes of the world, which usually a[illegible]ifferently, but that it should ‹Upper Clapton, (England). Is greatly pleased with the addressee's "Address to the Ministers." The writer read in the A.S. Standard a letter by Albert Barnes "proving that he and other Antislavery Ministers did more good by remaining in connection with the Church than by coming out of it." To her astonishment, the writer found that her letter to Kossuth was in the paper "and what was far worse my name was given as the writer of it." Desires a few shillings worth of the Moral Map, which the writer has already sent as far as Calcutta.

«(Orangehill, Tanderagee, Co.of Armagh)» The writer tells of a plan conceived by a lady of his acquaintance to publish an anthology of anti-slavery poetry, and of his help in the project. The writer asks the addressee to tell Mrs.Chapman that he is "a little vain" because he has anticipated her wishes by not mentioning her name in the Reply he has prepared to Tappan's pamphlet. On the other hand, the writer anticipated her permission in "freely appropriating the thunder" found in her letters and papers furnished by the Estlins. The latter have suggested amendments to the Reply. Tells of Miss Estlin's plan "to confute Dr.Campbell & his «British» Banner by publishing choice scraps of thei[illegible]k in parallel columns with the counter statements of hon[illegible] people."

The writer has written "hosts of letters," in most cases using Miss Tribe's name, as the writer's "known heresies would neutralize the whole thing." The documents must be in the hands of at least 300 ministers. The writer has been drawing up counter-statements to Dr. Campbell's "infidel" outcry. Mr. Webb's "anti Scoble & Tappan pamphlet has absorbed a great deal of thought." Mentions the notoriety that Dr.Campbell has given L. Tappan and the former's attacks on Garrison. Mrs.Massie calls Dr.Campbell "the Boston scavenger," and [illegible] angry at Albert Barnes for "having 'ratted'." The writ[illegible] discourses on George Thompson. A.L.S. 4 p. 8 3/8 x 5 1/4 in.

Refers to Mr.Scoble's care "to separate himself from the affairs of 'Dawn'." Names certain ministers to whom circulars have been sent. Mentions suspense in relation to a meeting in Bath. "The power of Mr. Scoble to destroy confidence in me is evidently on the wane." The writer will lecture tonight on slavery at the Mechanics Institute; on the next Sabbath he will preach twice in the Baptist Church on anti-slavery and slaveholding Missions, etc. Wishes to be informed when the replies to Mr.Scob[illegible]nd Tappan are published.

«Dublin, (Ireland)» Emma Weston is in London. E. Quincy's pamphlet is printed and in circulation. The writer's own production is much longer; he found it "a great job to tell the truth and say it properly." Remarks on the frailty of Miss Estlin and her "great intellectual energy." The Estlins have invited the writer's daughter Anne, who is ill with an eye trouble, and Mrs. Webb to stay with them, so that the child might be under Mr. Estlin's care. The writer has read Antonio in French and finds the story "rather too French" for English taste. Has written to Caroline Weston about possible prospects for the manuscript (of an English translation?) The writer regrets that the addressee i[illegible] going abroad. The writer's sister and family are satisfi[illegible] Australia. Characterizes an old friend Mary Shackleton in Ohio, who wants to visit Boston.

To "My Dear friend" «Anne Warren Weston»

«Boston» The writer declined to give "Brother «Samuel» May" money for the purchase of a slave. Then May asked the writer to advance $100 to send a colored man, a friend of Lewis Hayden, to California. The writer would under no circumstances contribute to purchase slaves or to send men "Black or white to California." (Francis) Jackson has contributed $100 for this purpose. (Winfield) Scott is nominated. The writer has decided to go to Europe with his family for 3 or 12 months. Loring Moody wants the writer to give money for (William Lawrence) Chaplin's bondsmen. «Boston» The writer's English friend, the Rev. Francis Bishop, stayed one day in Boston. Describes his projected itinerary. Mr. Bishop intended to travel to the slave states and "expressed a strong desire to have an interview with the 'owner' of William and Ellen Crafts." After visiting the far West, he will try to stay in Boston and vicinity for two or three weeks. A George Thompson has been elected to Parliament from Aberdeen. The writer regrets the poor health of the addressee's brother. Catherine Sargent is probably near death. Henrietta Sargent has taken care of her day and night.

To «Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman?»

«Park St., (Bristol, Eng.)» "Miss Weston's return to America seems like a prelude to your all taking flight." R. D. Webb is going to London to see her (Caroline Weston) and will join J. B. Estlin there. It is hoped that the first number of the Advocate will appear on the first of October. The addressee will receive a report of the B. & C. (Bristol & Clifton?) Society, which "is said here to be a matter of history." Two ministers from America have been critical of Josiah Henson. Tells of Sarah Pugh's visit here. Reports on Fanny N. Tribe's wedding. Hopes that her marriage will not quench the Anti-Slavery zeal of the bride, [illegible] Mrs. Seton. The Estlins enjoyed their Irish visit. C[illegible]butions for the Anti-Slavery Bazaar are coming in slowly [illegible]is year. The writer has made nine bags. A minister named Biggelow defended slavery and

To "Dear friends" [Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman and Emma Weston,]

[Park St., Bristol, England] The writer's stay in Dublin was prolonged because of the promised visit of the Estlins. Mary Estlin brought the "Report" to be printed. R. D. Webb will print the Anti-Slavery Advocate and act as its editor temporarily. The writer tells about her tour to the south of Ireland with the Estlins and R. D. Webb. In Cork they visited the Jennings family,-"Miss Isabel given up to F. Douglass & Mesmerism." In Dublin they had met Eliza Wigham and "her no less noble sister Mary Edmondson." The writer comments on the healthy appearance of th[illegible]or Irish country people. Now the writer, as the Estlins' [illegible]t in Bristol, warmly appreciates their hospitality and their "Anti-Slavery and other good works."

[(Dublin, Ireland?)] The writer encloses a letter received by R. D. Webb from (Frederick William) Chesson and an article written by Webb, on which he would like the addressee's opinion. The writer was rather surprised by Chesson's "strong terms both in praise of the old society & disapprobation of the British & Foreign [Anti-Slavery Society]" R. D. Webb is improving in health. They are expecting the visit of (James Miller) McKim.

«Boston» Believes it better to send a letter to be read at the "Rescue" anniversary than to be present, because of the cost of the journey. Exults in the success of the Woman's Rights Convention in Syracuse. The press has been respectful. Notes the change since 1840. The Grimké sisters are staying at S. Philbrick's house in Brookline. Angelina is ill with a fever. The seceding portion of the Liberty Party, headed by W. Goodell, will re-assemble at Syracuse. Calls nomination of Goodell for the presidency of the U.S. a farce. G. Smith is still a greenhorn politically.

To Miss Weston

«Bristol, Eng.» Congratulates Miss Weston on her return home, but hopes she will find reasons for making a second visit to Europe and that then "dear Annie «Chapman?» will accompany her." Elaborates on her nearness to the addressee in spirit. Mentions an Anti-Slavery show which has just ended. Praises Sarah Pugh, finds comfort in her consent to postpone her departure till the middle of November, and hopes she will stay through the winter. "She has already done good service at Bath"; Miss Pugh's expositions had eager listeners, who "gave forth their fears and doubts touching Garrison and the Infidel question-and were comforted [illegible] her replies." Mary Estlin's Report is doing good service [illegible]y have "bright hopes" of the Advocate, the first number of which is to appear on October 1st. gewater district. Wants the addressee to remember "that nothing ... will be so useful as Mr. Garrison's works." The writer is eager to hear how the addressee got on with Henson, who was her fellow voyager. Miss Pugh and Mr. James had a discussion of the women's rights question. Mary [Estlin?] and the writer are "yet in a mist as to some of our wrongs, but the American and English position are in some degree different." Has heard that Mrs. Maria W. Chapman is looking for an apartment. Gives news of other acquaintances, mentioning Mr. [John Bishop] Estlin apparently in his capacity as physician. Tells of an argument i[illegible]ich Garrison was called "bloodthirsty" by a Mr. Bigg[illegible]), who also told the story of Parker Pillsbury and the dog.
